

Valhalla

I didn't say no
As you tied my feet to the tide
Waves lapping on skin
With hearts once still now untied

I felt the fall
Of currents burning cold
Watching water fill my lungs
And liquid harden to stone

I stood with fibres frayed
As you scoured and strode the shore
Sinking silently
Marked with holes that you bore

I am the debris
Under eyes disguise
Submerged within the shallows
Below horizon lines

Let me sleep on the seabed
With eyes watertight
Body passed by creatures
Unseen by misty eyes

Lips lapping like waves
Caught in current lines
Screaming through the ocean
It is I, it is I